Biographical Information:

R. Jill Willi, M.S., currently teaches chemistry at North Central Texas College on the Corinth campus. Jill earned her B.S. in Chemistry at Texas Woman's University, and her M.S. at University of North Texas in 2010. Jill worked briefly in industry in wastewater analysis for Texas Analytical Laboratories in Fort Worth before realizing that teaching was her true calling. She has introduced many changes during her work at North Central Texas College, including implementing an organic chemistry course and lab on the Corinth campus. Jill enjoys attending area workshops to learn new teaching techniques to bring to the classroom. Jill has been a member of ACS since 2008 and is hoping to help the local section increase awareness of how chemistry affects all aspects of our lives.
